Let's play a game

- I show you the thumbnail of a video
- It has the following information:
 - Release year
 - Number of views
 - Number of likes
- You should guess if the video is appreciated by the community
- I show you the dislikes as a (good) metric of community feedback

The image shows a YouTube video player interface. A man in a blue shirt and black pants is standing on a balcony with a glass railing, looking out at a vast, misty mountain range. The video player has a play button, volume controls, and a timestamp of 0:02 / 8:13. Below the video, the title reads "YouTube Rewind 2018: Everyone Controls Rewind | #YouTubeRewind". The channel information shows 38.1M subscribers. At the bottom, there are interaction metrics: 3.1M likes, 20M dislikes, and options to Share, Download, Clip, and more.

How about science?

- You might think this is just about the entertainment companies.
- How about scientific publications? Books? Conferences? Journals?

Academic Publication

open access

Sci-Hub is a part of the Open Access Movement in science. The movement emerged in 1990s as a reaction to increasingly growing prices for academic journals: university libraries could not afford journal subscriptions. Librarians and researchers argued for making access to knowledge free or cheap.

High prices are unjustified and were made possible by monopoly-like mechanisms in academic publishing. The most appalling fact: the authors of articles in academic journals receive zero money for their work.

Sci-Hub became the most radical - and so far the most successful - take on the open access.

	country	number of articles
1	 China	48,657,829	11	 United Kingdom 1,296,745

About

Anna's Archive is a non-profit project with two goals:

1. Preservation: Backing up all knowledge and culture of humanity.
2. Access: Making this knowledge and culture available to anyone in the world.

Preservation

We preserve books, papers, comics, magazines, and more, by bringing these materials from various shadow libraries together in one place. All this data is preserved forever by making it easy to duplicate it in bulk, resulting in many copies around the world. This wide distribution, combined with open-source code, also makes our website resilient to takedowns. Learn more about our datasets.
